PROVIDENCE, MARCH 19.

Yeſterday being the 18th of March, a Day ſacred to Liberty, a Paper was fixed up in the moſt public Part of the Town, the Contents whereof, are as follow, viz.

THIS Day is the Anniverſary of the Repeal of the memorable STAMP-ACT. It is a Day much to be obſerved, for the Deliverance of a whole Country from Slavery and Miſery. The common People of Great-Britain, by their Repreſentatives, aſſumed a Power of taxing the King's Subjects in America, and invented an Act, the moſt arbitrary and oppreſſive that ever was framed againſt the Rights and Liberties of Mankind. But the free-born Americans, thoſe true Sons of Liberty, diſdained to ſubmit to an Act, that muſt involve them, and all their Poſterity, in certain Slavery and Ruin. They made a reſolute Stand againſt the Act, and firmly reſiſted the Execution of it. The Stamp-Maſters were blown out of their Places, and there was not a Man to be found, who would dare to execute ſo infamous a Buſineſs. The Stamp-Offices were levelled with the Earth, and the ſtamped Paper, where it could be come at, was ſeized upon, and committed to the Flames. The Merchants refuſed any further Commerce with the People of Britain, until our Grievances were redreſſed. All the Legiſlatures, in theſe Parts of the World, reſolved againſt the binding Force and Obligation of that moſt wicked Act; and a general Congreſs was formed, where the Freedom and Immunities were nobly aſſerted by that illuſtrious Aſſembly. Our invincible Reſolutions to maintain our Rights, alarmed the People of Great-Britain, and the Act was repealed as on this Day. Wherefore it becomes us to celebrate the Anniverſary in a decent Manner, conſidering that, after all our Exertions in the Cauſe, our Deliverance muſt be ultimately aſcribed to Him by whom Kings reign. Tumultuous Rejoicings ought to be avoided, yet nevertheleſs Cheerfulneſs, and a modeſt Partaking of the good Things of our Country, is not only juſtifiable, but commendable. upon this Feſtival. Let our Children be inſtructed in the Deſign of keeping this Day, to the End that they may be inſpired with a Love of Liberty and their Country—Let our Reſolutions to ſupport all our civil and religious Liberties, be unconquerable. If there be NOW any Act of the Old Engliſh Parliament, that in the leaſt Meaſure ſtrikes at our Privileges, let us oppoſe it, and that inſtantly, with the ſame Firmneſs that we reſiſted the deteſtable Stamp-Act—Delays in ſuch Matters are fatal—If we can be perſuaded to wear Chains but for a Moment, we are loſt. To ſtand and parley, when a Burden is laid upon us, to beg, pray and beſeech, is Submiſſion. No Time therefore is to be loſt. We ought to determine this Moment, never to yield any Obedience to unconſtitutional Laws, made for us by a People who have no Power over us in that Behalf. Our Fathers ſought out and ſettled this delightful Country; they have brought it to a State of Profit; they have lived happily, plentifully and quietly; they have left to us their Poſſeſſions. But our Circumſtances are viewed with Jealouſy, and Naboth's Vineyard is longed for. They undertake to give and grant away our Goods and Chattels, without our Conſent. If we ſubmit to this, our Lands will be voted away in the next Place. Surely we ought to take the Alarm, at the leaſt Attack upon our Liberties, and oppoſe it in the Beginning. Our Country is the fineſt of any in the whole World. It is the American Canaan. A Land of Brooks of Waters, of Fountains and Depths, that ſpring out of the Valleys and Hills. A Land of Wheat and Corn, of Milk and Honey, of Flocks and Herds—A Land wherein we may eat Bread without Scarceneſs, and wherein we lack nothing—A Land whoſe Stones are Iron, and which is capable of furniſhing all the Neceſſaries and Delicacies of Life. Let us then improve this good and large Land to the beſt Advantage—Let us be aſhamed to be dependent on other Countries for Manufactures, which may be abundantly fabricated here—Let it be our Glory to make uſe only of ſuch Articles as are manufactured in this Country. A little Induſtry and Application will ſoon open the Source of abundant Supply. And, above all, let us encourage good Morals, both by Precept, and Example; as no People can be happy, without being virtuous.

Providence, March 18.

To the PRINTER,

SIR,

I Was pleaſed to ſee by your Advertiſement in laſt Thurſday's New-York Journal, that you intend to republiſh in your Paper, the Pieces ſign'd An American Whig, together with the Anſwers, and the beſt Pieces that come out in the other Papers upon the Subject of that Controverſy, on both Sides of the Queſtion. This Exhibition of the Arguments on both Sides in the ſame Paper, is certainly the moſt likely Means to enable the Reader to form a juſt and equitable Judgment;—and if we muſt needs be forced into this religious Controverſy, your Propoſal bids the faireſt for deciding it according to Truth and Juſtice. But at the ſame Time, as a hearty Friend to the Britiſh Colonies, I cannot but expreſs my Concern, that this Controverſy ſhould have been begun at ſuch a Time as this,—when the united Efforts of all the Colonies are ſo neceſſary for the Preſervation of their Conſtitutional Rights and Liberties.

The Introduction of ſuch a Diſpute at this Time, I conceive to be in many Reſpects extremely injudicious,—as it will tend to take off the public Attention from the Main Chance, to diſunite, and ſet us to quarreling among our ſelves, and give our Enemies an Advantage over us: Beſides the Time is quite improper for the Diſcuſſion of the Subject;—When our Minds are in a State of anxious Concern,—whether we are henceforth to conſider ourſelves as having any other Relation to Great Britain bu as being her Slaves,—whether we have any Part or Let in her beloved Conſtitution and the Rights of Nature—which have always been our Boaſt and our Glory;—whether we are a Nation of Freemen, or of abject deſpicable Slaves?—a State of dread Suſpence, can our Mind proper Frame for determining the ſubtil Diſp tween Arminians and Calviniſts, Church M Preſbyterians? Theſe Matters have of then been often found ſufficient to ſet whole Kin in a Flame, and ſhall we needleſsly kindle th of Contention among ourſelves, when our d Intereſts are in Danger from falſe Friends and open Enemies without?

Can we think the Deſigns of this Author of D. ſention, this Sower of Diſcord among us, ar friendly to the Engliſh Conſtitution and Government, or the Rights of thoſe Colonies? When theſe were in the moſt imminent Danger of being overturned and torne from us by the Stamp-Act, did this Author, or his Party ſtir a Finger to prevent it? Or have they done any Thing ſince in Favour of the Engliſh Conſtitution and American Rights, tho' theſe have been repeatedly attack'd, by the Acts, for Billeting Soldiers,—for impoſing Duties, &c? On the Contrary, has not this Attempt of the American Whig to diſunite us, a manifeſt Tendency to bring upon us all the Evils that threaten us, and reduce us to a State of general Confuſion? And is it not, from a careful Review of every Circumſtance, at leaſt highly probable, that he and his Party would rejoice in a Diſunion between Great Britain and her Colonies, and would be among the firſt to change a Monarchical for a Republican Government? Which may Heaven avert!

A SON OF LIBERTY.

QUEBEC, March 1768.

ON the 10th Day of last February, came on to be argued in the Supreme Court of Judicature at Quebec, before the Hon. William Hey, Esq; Chief Justice of this Province, a Demurrer joined, in the Action brought by Joseph Howard, Merchant of Montreal, Plaintiff, against Mr. Thomas Walker, Merchant of the same Place, Defendant, for maliciously, and without any probable Cause, procuring the said Joseph Howard to be arrested in November 1766, and detained in Custody at Montreal, till about the Middle of March 1767, upon a Charge of being concerned in the cruel Assault committed upon the said Thomas Walker, on the 6th Day of December 1764.—Mr. Walker, in a long special Plea, set forth the positive Charge made by George M'Govock, one of the Accomplices in that Assault, against the said Joseph Howard, of having been present at the Commission of it, and some concomitant Grounds of Suspicion that seemed greatly to confirm that Charge, as the Motives of his procuring the said Mr. Howard to be so arrested and confined, as being sufficient to justify him for so doing. The Plaintiff demurred to this Plea as being insufficient for Mr. Walker's Justification. The Court held it to be amply sufficient for that Purpose, and immediately gave a Judgment for the Defendant. And on the next Day four other Actions, brought against Mr. Walker, by four others of the Men lately in Custody at Montreal, † upon the like Ground, in which Mr. Walker had likewise made special Pleas in his Justification, and to which Pleas the Plaintiffs had in like Manner demurred as insufficient for that Purpose, were discontinued upon the Motion of the Counsel for the Plaintiff.

† The Persons taken up, five of whom brought these actions against Mr. Walker, were, Daniel Disney, a Captain in the 44th Regiment of Foot; John Frazer, Paymaster-General of the Troops in the District of Montreal, one of the Judges in the Court of Common Pleas, and Captain in the late 78th Regiment; John Campbel, Captain in the 27th Regiment; Simon Evans, Lieutenant in the 28th Regiment; St. Luc la Corne, late a Captain in the French Service, Knt. of the Order of St. Louis, and Joseph Howard, Merchant.

ON the 11th Day of February last, came on to be argued in the Supreme Court of Judicature at Quebec, before the Hon. William Hey, Esq; Chief Justice of this Province, a Demurrer joined in the Action brought by Samuel Mackey, Esq; Plaintiff, against Mr. Thomas Walker, Defendant, for slanderous Words spoken of him by the said Thomas Walker, concerning his Conduct as a Grand Juryman at the Session of the Supreme Court of Judicature holden at Montreal, in the Months of February and March 1767.——Mr. Walker made a long special Plea to this Action, setting forth the Manner, Occasion and Motive of his speaking the Words in Question. The Court gave Judgment for the Defendant.

ON Monday the 29th of February last, at the Session of the Supreme Court of Judicature holden at Montreal, for the City and District of Montreal, before the Hon. William Hey, Esq; his Majesty's Chief Justice of this Province, came on the Trial of George M'Govock, late a Soldier of the 28th Regiment, for wilful and corrupt Perjury. The Indictment was found against him at the Supreme Court of Judicature, holden at Montreal in September last: The Perjury assigned was, that he [illegible]e Trial of Capt. Disney, on the 11th of [illegible], that he had seen that Gentleman in [illegible]'s House, on the Night of the 6th of [illegible] 1764, during the Time that the Russians, [illegible]itted the cruel Assault upon Mr. Walker [illegible]vening, were employed in the Commission [illegible]ding and abetting the said Ruffians. The [illegible]e brought in Support of this Prosecution, [illegible]l principally of the Testimony of Mr. and [illegible]obertson, Mrs. White, and Mrs. Landrieves, [illegible]posed (as Mr. Robertson and Mrs. Landrieves [illegible]merly deposed at Capt. Disney's Trial) that [illegible]. Disney had spent that Evening of the 6th of [illegible]ember 1764, in their Company, at Mr. Robert[illegible]'s House in St. Paul's Street, near the Market-[illegible]lace in Montreal, and of the Testimony of one James Case, a Soldier now doing Duty in the Battalion of the Regiment of Royal Americans quartered at Montreal, and late of the 28th Regiment, who deposed, that he saw the said George M'Govock on the Night of the said 6th of December 1764, a little before the Perpetration of the said Assault, in such a State of Drunkenness as to be incapable of being concerned in that Affair. But as he likewise deposed, that the said George M'Govock had told him, at that very Time, that he would soon hear of something very remarkable, and as it was proved to the Jury, that this very Witness, James Case, had given Evidence at the Trial of Capt. Disney, and had then deposed, when particularly examined thereunto, that the said George M'Govock, at the Time he saw him a little before the said Assault, was not very drunk, but was able to go about Business, the Jury thought proper to pay but little Regard to this new Part of his Testimony; and after withdrawing for the Space of an Hour and an Half, brought in their Verdict that the Defendant was not Guilty. It may be observed, that at the Trial of Capt. Disney in March 1767, one Henry Mertz, a Soldier of the 28th Regiment, had deposed, that about the Time of the Assault upon Mr. Walker, on the 6th of December 1764, he saw a Number of disguised Persons going towards Mr. Walker's House, and among them a Person whom he took to be George M'Govock, and that he was well acquainted with George M'Govock's Person, having known him three or four Years before that Time; so that it can hardly be doubted, that the said George M'Govock was really present in Mr. Walker's House on that Occasion.

BOSTON, March 28.

Captain Purbeck, from North-Carolina, on the 8th inst. about ten leagues east of Cape-Cod, came athwart a sloop lying on her beam ends, full of water; he judged her to be about 70 tons, she had a black wait and quarters, her stern painted blue and cabbin windows white.

We hear from Salem, that a vessel which arrived there the beginning of last week, saw off Cape-Anne, a large vessel, supposed about 200 tons mostly under water, and a dead man in her main-chains; and some fishermen belonging to Charlestown, on wednesday last, saw two schooners towing a wreck into Cape-Anne: They were about two miles and a half from the wreck.

NEW-YORK, April 7.

The Sloop Live-Oake, Capt. Hammond, arrived here on Wednesday the 30th Ult. in the Afternoon, in 24 Days from Pensacola, but last from the Havannah, where, he says the Spaniards were very busy in erecting many new Fortifications; that many Spanish Vessels had lately been at Pensacola, and several others daily expected; that Capt. M'Minn, sailed from thence about two Months since, for London, with a Cargo of Furs and Peltry to the amount of about £.28,000 Sterling; That Capt. James Chambers, in a Sloop of this Port, sailed from that Place for the Musqueto-Shore, about 30 Days ago; That Capt. Taylor, in a Schooner, sailed for Philadelphia three Days before Capt. Hammond, and that a Brig was just arived at Pensacola from Philadelphia.

Wednesday Night Capt. Brooks, came up from the Bay of Honduras, in 33 Days, where he says, Wood was very plenty and Provisions scarce. He left about 12 sail of Vessels in the Bay, and among them the following, viz. Capts. Joseph Lawrence, Quill, Webb and Coffin, from this Port; Law and Hagar, from Philadelphia; and most of the others belonged to the Eastward.

Capt. ———, in a Brig, of and for this Port, sailed from the Bay three Days before, Capt. Brooks, and may be hourly expected.

Between four and five o'Clock last Friday Afternoon, a Fire broke out in the St[illegible] of the Revd. Mr. Greno, on Golden-Hill, which burnt great Part of the same before it could be extinguished. It was supposed to have been done by Design, and some Persons in the Neighbourhood are committed to Bridewell, on that Account, suspected to have been the Perpetrators thereof.

On Tuesday Night arrived the Snow Two Brothers, Capt. Smith, in eight Weeks from Coracoa, having met with extreme bad Weather on the Passage, which obliged him to lie too, once or twice a Week.

(18 22) DAN. HORSMANDEN.

THE subscriber having from his infancy endeavoured to qualify himself in the art of historical painting, humbly hopes for that encouragement from the gentlemen and ladies of this city and province, that so elegant and entertaining an art has always obtain'd from people of the most improved minds and best taste and judgment, in all polite nations in every age. And tho' he is sensible that to excel, (in this branch of painting especially) requires a more ample fund of universal and accurate knowledge than he can pretend to, in geometry, geography, perspective, anatomy, expression of the passions, antient and modren history, &c. &c. yet he hopes, from the good nature and indulgence of the gentlemen and ladies who employ him, that his humble attempts, in which his best endeavours will not be wanting, will meet with acceptance, and give satisfaction; and he proposes to work at as cheap rates as any person in America.

To such gentlemen and ladies as have thought but little upon this subject and might only regard painting as a superfluous ornament, I would just observe, that history painting, besides being extremely ornamental has many important uses.—It presents to our view some of the most interesting scenes recorded in antient or modern history, gives us more lively and perfect ideas of the things represented, than we could receive from a historical account of them, and frequently recals to our memory a long train of events with which those representations were connected. They show us a proper expression of the passions excited by every event, and have an effect, the very same in kind, (but stronger) that a fine historical discription of the same passage would have upon a judicious reader. Men who have distinguished themselves for the good of their country and mankind, may be set before our eyes as examples, and to give us their silent lessons—and besides, every judicious friend and visitant shares, with us in the advantage and improvement, and increases its value to ourselves.

VISIONS OF FANCY.

ELEGY I.

CHILDREN of FANCY, whither are ye fled!
Where have ye borne thoſe Hope-enliven'd Hours,
That once with myrtle garlands bound my head,
That once beſtrew'd my vernal path with flowers?
In yon fair vale, where blooms the beechen grove,
Where winds the ſlow wave thro' the flowery plain,
To theſe fond arms you led the Tyrant, LOVE,
With FEAR and HOPE and FOLLY in his train.
My lyre, that, left at careleſs diſtance, hung
Light on ſome pale branch of the oſier ſhade,
To lays of amorous blandiſhment you ſtrung,
And o'er my ſleep the lulling muſic play'd.
"Reſt, gentle youth! while on the quivering breeze
"Slides to thine ear this ſoftly breathing ſtrain;
"Sounds that move ſmoother than the ſteps of eaſe,
"And pour oblivion in the ear of pain.
"In this fair vale eternal ſpring ſhall ſmile,
"And TIME unenvious crown each roſeate hour;
"Eternal joy ſhall every care beguile,
"Breathe in each gale, and bloom in every flower.
"This ſilver ſtream, that down it's cryſtal way
"Frequent has led thy muſing ſteps along,
"Shall, ſtill the ſame, in ſunny mazes play,
"And with it's murmurs melodiſe thy ſong.
"Unfading green ſhall theſe fair groves adorn;
"Thoſe living meads immortal flowers unfold;
"In roſy ſmiles ſhall riſe each bluſhing morn,
"And every evening cloſe in clouds of gold.
"The tender LOVES that watch thy ſlumbering reſt,
"And round thee flowers and balmy myrtles ſtrew,
"Shall charm, thro' all approaching life, thy breaſt,
"With joys for ever pure, for ever new.
"The genial power that ſpeeds the golden dart,
"Each charm of tender paſſion ſhall inſpire;
"With fond affection fill the mutual heart,
"And feed the flame of ever-young DESIRE:
"Come gentle LOVES! your myrtle garlands bring;
"The ſmiling bower with cluſter'd roſes ſpread;
"Come gentle AIRS! with incenſe-dropping wing
"The breathing ſweets of vernal odour ſhed.
"Hark, as the ſtrains of ſwelling muſic riſe,
"How the notes vibrate on the fav'ring gale!
"Auſpicious glories beam along the ſkies,
"And powers unſeen the happy moments hail!
"Extatic hours! ſo every diſtant day
"Like this ſerene on downy wings ſhall move;
"Riſe crown'd with joys that triumph o'er decay,
"The faithful joys of FANCY and of LOVE."

April 9 [SATURDA

No. 1317 [i.e. 1318]

NEW-YORK.

Mr. HOLT,

I beg you will insert the following in your Paper, for the Benefit of your female Readers, who are deeply concerned in the Subject of it; and you will oblige one of the moſt conſtant of them.

I AM one of thoſe unfaſhionable Creatures among the fair Sex, who am not aſhamed to confeſs myſelf an Enemy to the Play-Houſe; not from an affectation of Singularity, but from a principle of Piety and public Spirit. My Education has indeed given a religious turn to my Sentiments and therefore ſome may think this Averſion proceeds from ſuperſtitious Whim and Fancy. Others may wonder to hear a Woman talk of public Spirit and love to her Country; as the World in general ſeems to think us formed only for Pleaſures and Amuſements. 'Tis a pity that our Sex in general are ſo wanting to themſelves as to give Room for this Imputation. If others are Content to bear the Charge, I would at leaſt exculpate myſelf from it: For I cannot help thinking that Time is of greater Importance to me than to be wafted off like a Bubble on the Stream of Pleaſure; and that tho' our Sex are not fitted for the buſtling World, nor can ſhine in the Councils of the Cabinet, or the heroic Actions of the Field; yet we may, and ought, in private and domeſtic Life to order our Conduct ſo, as not to be altogether uſeleſs with reſpect to our relative Connections; much leſs ſubverſive of our own Tranquility and Happineſs.

The laſt Week being ſet apart by our Church as a proper Seaſon to be employed in devout Meditation, preparatory to the Commemoration of the Death and Paſſion of our Saviour, occaſioned the Play-Houſe to be ſhut up for that Time. By this indeed was ſhewn a Regard to Religion, which all muſt confeſs to be decent and becoming; but does it not ſhew more?—Why this Breach upon the Entertainments of the Theatre; but becauſe they muſt have tended to unfit the Mind for a proper Attention to the religious Duties ſet before us? It neceſſarily carries with it an Acknowledgment of this Truth; and if they would have had this Effect at that Seaſon, will they not always have the ſame Tendency? or do we think there is only one Week in the Year, in which we ought to improve theſe religious Meditations, under a ſpecial Guard againſt the Allurements of Diſſipation and Pleaſure?

A few Days ago I paid a Viſit to a young Lady of my Acquaintance, who is as remarkably fond of Plays as I am averſe to them: And in ſhort her Paſſion for the Theatre had got ſo much the better of her Religion, that ſhe was lamenting the Evenings unimproved at the Play-Houſe, as ſo much loſt Time; ſaid the Week hung heavy upon her Hands, and wiſhed it was paſt. The Thought beforementioned occurred to me, nor did I fail to preſs it upon her, till I found it gave her Pain and threw her into ſome Confuſion. While I was thus engaged in the friendly Taſk of reproving her Levity, and the Uneaſineſs ſhe diſcovered made her the Subject of my Compaſſion; I could not help reflecting with peculiar Pleaſure on the Tranquility of my own Mind, that was free from the Inquietude which diſcompoſed her Breaſt.

I would not however have it underſtood that this calm indifference of mine proceeds from a want of Taſte for Plays, for I flatter myſelf there are few of the many that frequent them, who have the Advantage of me in that Reſpect. It is owing to the Rigour with which I have perſevered in denying myſelf an Indulgence that does but heighten our Paſſion for thoſe Entertainments—Aſcribe it not therefore my fair Siſters to gloomineſs of Mind, or a moping melancholy Spirit—I diſclaim theſe as the Badges of Superſtition—I rather boaſt the cheerful ſprightly Air; love to ſee Elegance and Politeneſs in the Deportment of our Sex, and have no Notion of ſending them to a Nunnery for their Education.

But notwithſtanding all this, can we take upon ourſelves to ſay that we are unconcerned in the Fate of our Country; that we owe no Duties, are under no Obligations to Society? Surely not. The Public is now become a School for teaching the great Leſſons of Oeconomy, and if we ever expect to make good Wives, or prudent Mothers, we muſt get a little Knowledge at this School. Good now, what will avail all the Attainments of our ſuperior Lords and Maſters in the Science of Oeconomy, if we know nothing about the Matter; nay, if we are rather diſciplined in the School of Extravagance?—This depends wholly upon our own Conduct, and if any of us ſhould hereafter find ourſelves unequally yoked on Account of this Circumſtance, we know who to thank for it. Is there not Reaſon to fear it may make the Yoke of Matrimony uneaſy to ſome of us; for People may am ſure that Man muſ extravagant Wife a Bleſ in the Opinion of her Hu ſing—ſhe is—what? a Has not this fatal Circur Proſperity the Means anxious that the Ladies o a little of the good old what their Huſbands may Oeconomy now with Ho Spirit of the Times, an themſelves by a ſingular A vered.

That the Play-Houſe is I believe is a Point that ne prove it—That it is a Nurſ and Pride is not leſs Self-evi tain a Truth that the Ladie deſtroy a Play-Houſe by the us once deſert it, and the ſtr tlemen now have for goin away; but as long as we Boxes with our Preſence, ſo unfailing Support for the Th that while our Country is Diſtreſſes, it ill becomes, with public Diverſions—It beti ſibility of our Misfortunes, eit good Senſe as not diſcerning, or Sincerity of our Hearts, as not Calamities. Let us convince t want neither; and by our Exam the Play-Houſe, ſtand foremoſt on the Rolls of patriotic Fame, a nour of having been the glorious conomy in America.

THE noble Sentiments expreſſed Letter of the celebrated Roman to his Son, may be of Uſe to caution claim others, who are not already Luxury and Vice; which if it ſhoul myſelf well rewarded for ſending you I am perſuaded you will think yourſe retaliated for giving it a Place in yo Paper.—Sure I am, that many in our and read their own true Picture in t Marcus.

CAN I think, O Marcus, thy vicio Life could offer to eclipſe my Glo queſtion even the Oracles of Truth in for nothing is more difficult than to m believe what he does not like; yet am I give Credit to my Senſes.—I ſee thee dail in all Kinds of Luxury, and hear thee, diſcourſing on nothing but Vanity. Ill F no other Way to attack me. My Count Safety to me, and both the Senate and P ſtiled me their Preſerver. I have ſurme meanneſs of my Birth, and baffled all the of Envy, Malice, Pride, and Calumny a Nothing but the Vagaries of Marcus cou me unhappy: Poor unfortunate Cicero! r that State by the Diſobedience of a Chil thy Enemies could not bring thee to. T cus, thou alone robbeſt me of my Honour, my Virtue, and cloggeſt the Wings of m Upon what a weak Foundation have I fou Hopes? Upon one, who inſtead of ſtriking me towards the acquiring of Glory, will, i not reform, leave to Poſterity the Chara Libertine; and whereas he might inherit t nown due to my Labours, will deprive his r of all Content, and himſelf of all Eſteem. But is yet Time, O my Son, to recant thy Errors, ar return to thy Studies. By one thou will reſtore Quiet; and by the other enrich thyſelf. It is ne too late to learn—I have known a Man of an H dred Years old, thirſt after Inſtruction: Nay wiſe Men will hearken to their Friends, even they are dying. Caſt off then that Yoke which Vice has put on thee, and whereby thy Mind is depraved, thy Senſes ſtupified, thy Reputation loſt, and Mind obſcured: Conſider theſe worldly Pleaſures as Syrens, that decoy thee to thy Ruin, and which are really nothing but vain, vile, frail, ſhort liv'd Things, ſubject to a Thouſand Accidents, and whoſe End is only Torment and Repentance. Yet all this while, I do not ſpeak againſt thoſe Diverſions that unbend the Mind: A Bow always bent is ſoon broken, and the Imbecillity of our Nature requires ſome Recreation. I blame only Incontinence, Luxury, and ſuperfluous Uſe of Meat and Drink.—No Vice is more abominable than Intemperance, from

NEW-YORK, April 9.

There having been some circumstantial Mistakes the Account publish'd in our last, concerning the ransactions on board the Brig Diamond, Capt. Craw, the following more exact Narrative of that Affair is publish'd under his Inspection, viz.

That he sail'd from England (Cows) in September last, bound to the Canaries, and again from Teneriffe the 12th December last, having on board besides himself, Gilbert Blair, Mate, Gabriel Birch, William Johnson, Daniel Denny, John Grub, William Mickison and a Boy belonging to the Vessel; and Mr. John Delahinty Passenger. That before leaving the Islands, several of the Men had discovered an ill will towards Mr. Blair the Mate, who endeavoured to keep them to their Duty, which seems to have been the Cause of their Dislike to him;

—particularly, Johnson, as he was inform'd, had used threatning Expressions toward him. Grub and Johnson were intimate Companions, and Mickison was a Confederate with them in the Design of doing some Mischief to the Mate, as he was inform'd by Birch, who was consider'd as a particular Friend of his, and was confided in both by him and the Captain. The Behaviour of these Men on the Voyage, after leaving Teneriffe, seem'd to agree with the Account given of them by Birch, and the Boy declared that he had once heard Grub use threatening Expressions against the Captain and Mate if ever he could meet with them on Shore. That on the 30th of December, being about 150 Leagues to the W. of Madeira, several of the Men had got drunk and behaved in a disorderly Manner; in the Evening Birch was called down into the Cabbin and examin'd, when he told the Captain and Mate that he believed Johnson and Grub had a Design of running away with the Vessel and desired them to be on their Guard. That the same Night about two o'Clock in the Morning of the 31st December, it being the Watch of the Mate, Birch, Johnson, and Denny, Johnson, came hastily down the Fore Hatch Way, and enter'd the Cabbin by the Steerage Door, (which had always been kept nail'd up) at the same Time, in a Tone that expressed Fear and Surprise, called out to the Cpatain to get up directly, for that Birch had murder'd the Mate and thrown him overboard. While he was speaking, Birch who enter'd immediately after with an Ax in his Hand, and overheard him, said that it was not he, but Johnson who had murder'd the Mate. When Johnson first enter'd the Cabbin, the Captain who had been ill, and was in Bed in the State Room, started up, but before he could rise from the Bed Johnson was got into the State Room, and Birch to the Door of it with the Ax lifted up in the Action of making a Stroke, but whether aim'd at Johnson or the Captain he cannot tell, the Captain endeavour'd to ward off the Blow with his left Arm, and thereby received a slight Wound near the Wrist. The Captain who had at that Time no Suspicion of Birch, immediately seiz'd Johnson, but was overpower'd, and both Johnson and Birch were upon him. As there was not Room in the Place to use the Ax, Birch had drop'd it, and ask'd the Captain if he should cut Johnson's Throat? This the Captain assenting to, Birch drew his Knife and attempted it, wounded Johnson in the Neck, but not mortally, the Captain also in the Struggle received a slight Wound in the Flank, but disengaged himself from both Johnson and Birch, and ran into the Cabbin to the Place where he kept his Sword, which was known to no other Person but Birch, who on seeing him go to the Place, said to him, Sir your Sword is not there, it has been taken away, and hid upon Deck. Mean while the Passenger, who lay in the Mate's Bed, and overheard what pass'd, had got up; and thinking that the Captain, and Birch whom he supposed to be the Captain's Friend, would be an overmatch for Johnson; and suspecting that there might be other Accomplices on board, he placed himself in the Passage, to prevent any of them from entering the Cabbin: While the Captain was engaged in the State Room, Grub, arm'd with an Iron Bar, attempted to enter the Cabbin, saying he was going to assist the Captain; but the Passenger stop'd him, took the Bar from him, and turn'd him back. By this Time the Boy came and struck a Light, Birch recover'd the Ax, and with it knock'd Johnson down on the Cabbin Floor, giving him several Blows, which the Captain supposed to be mortal. Birch and the Passenger secured his Hands and Feet with a Rope and left him on the Floor till Morning. When he was secured Birch directed the Boy where to go for the Sword, which he found and brought from thence. Johnson appearing not to be dead, Birch endeavour'd to persuade the Captain to dispatch him, and also Grub, who he said he knew to be an Accomplice. Birch then went upon Deck, the Captain arm'd with his Sword, a Musket, &c. in the Cabbin, and the Passenger with the Iron Bar in the Companion Door, kept Watch till Day light. The Boy took an Opportunity to inform the Captain, that Denny, the Man at Helm when the Murder was committed, had told him it was Birch and not Johnson who had murdered and thrown the Mate overboard. The Captain was much alarm'd, but conceal'd his Suspicion of Birch, till Day.

Johnson as he lay in the Cabbin recover'd his Senses and solemnly told the Captain that he had no Hand in murdering the mate, that Birch came to him as he lay asleep under the Long-Boat, waked him, and told him he had murdered and thrown the Mate over board, and persuaded him to go with him and assist in murdering the Captain, —that he refused and went down to warn the Captain, which was the Reason Birch wanted to kill him. In the morning the Captain went arm'd upon Deck, called to Grub, told him if he would come up and suffer himself to be bound he would not kill him, otherwise he should be shot. After he was bound, the Captain caused the Boat to be hoisted out, sent Birch into it, to hold it too, put into it about 10 Gallons of Water, 30lb of Bread, a Bottle of Wine, a Botttle of Brandy, two oars, a Tiller, ſome Bed-Cloaths and a Compaſs, together with Grub, and Johnſon (who was unable to walk, would not or could not ſpeak any more, and the Captain ſuppoſed could not live 24 Hours.) Birch was ſtill in the Boat not knowing he was ſuſpected, when the Captain charged him with the murder, and before him examined Denny, who declared,—That being at Helm, The Mate ſat nodding on a Hencoop, Johnſon not preſent, Birch approached with an Ax, that he aſk'd him what he was going to do, that Birch, replied if he ſpoke he would murder him. That then Birch went forward out of ſight, that he (Denny) then went to the mate waked him, and told him for God's Sake not to ſleep, for there was ſome Deſign againſt him. That the Mate then got up went forward, ſaw that all was quiet, came back, ſat down on the Hen-Coop, and ſoon fell aſleep again, his Head hanging on one ſide: That Birch then came up, and with the Ax, which he had concealed under his Jacket, ſtruck him a violent Blow on the Head, with which he fell on the Deck, and groaned; that Birch repeated the Blows till the Mate was quite dead, when dragging him by the Heals to the Side, he threw him overboard: That then Birch waken'd Johnſon and went with him into the Cabbin, and he (Denny) went to Grub, told him of it, and that he went down—Birch ſeem'd much confounded, but ſaid not a Word in Contradiction to this Evidence. The Boat with thoſe 3 Men was then turn'd adrift, and the Captain told them the Courſe to Steer for Madeira. After they were got to ſome Diſtance they diſcover'd that their Compaſs would not traverſe,—which when they told the Captain, he called them back and gave them a good Compaſs. The weather proved favourable for many Days, ſo that if not taken up by ſome Veſſel, they might have got ſafe on Shore.

Birch is the Son of a Butcher at Plymouth, about 19 years of age, 5½ Feet high, pale Complection, thin Face, black Hair, thin black Beard, black ſunk Eyes, large black Eye-Brows, and Gloomy Countenance.

Grub was born in Falmouth, is about 23 years of age, 5 Feet 5 Inches high, Complection ſomewhat fair, has a long Noſe and Chin, and Bandy Leggs.

Johnſon was born in the North of Ireland, was about 20 Years of Age, fair Hair, had a ſmooth Face, and was about 5 Feet 7 Inches high.

Denny and Mickiſon were both ſuſpected. Denny from his Behaviour, which he could not well account for, and from his own Account, which contain'd ſeveral Improbabilities; Mickiſon from his former Behaviour, and not oppoſing the Conſpirators—but he denied knowing or hearing any Thing of the Matter; and nothing could be proved againſt either of theſe Men: But Denny ſeem'd continually troubled and uneaſy, part of the Time almoſt ſtupid, till the 20th of March; however he was in Health, eat heartily, went up the Maſt, and ſoon after he came down ſeem'd like a Man in Drink, was put to Bed, and in an Hour or two died, without the appearance of any Pain or Diſorder. On the 27th of January in the Night, Lat. 31. Long. 45. ſpoke with the Ship St. Domingo, Capt. Stevenſon, who at Capt. Craw's Requeſt hoiſt out his Boat and came on board; but on being told what had happen'd, ſeem'd ſo terrified and uneaſy to be gone, that he would not ſtay to receive a diſtinct account, nor to get ſome neceſſaries he wanted; but conſented to ſpare Capt. Craw a Hand, which he went with Capt. Stevenſon for, and carried with him on board the Diamond, which arrived here the 30th ult.

On their arrival the Capt. and people were examin'd by the magiſtrates, and a few Days after, a Veſſel arrived at Boſton from Cape Fear, which brought from Capt. Stevenſon an Account of the Affair, wherein the name of the Capt. and ſeveral other Circumſtances are different—ariſing perhaps from Capt. Stevenſon's Hurry and Confuſion at the Time. His Account occaſion'd a freſh and more particular Examination—agreeable in ſubſtance to this Narrative.

§ XXVII. And be it Enacted by the same Authority, That if any Merchant, Factor, or other Person, shall land or put on Shore, any of the before mentioned dutiable Goods, before he or they have duly entered the same with the Treasurer, and paid, or secured the Payment of the Duty thereof, to him, according to this Act; all such dutiable Goods, so landed or put on Shore, (except Slaves attending on their Masters and Mistresses,) shall be forfeited, recovered, applied, and divided in the Manner before mentioned.

EXTRACT from the VOTES and PROCEEDINGS, of the General-Assembly, of the Colony of New-York.

Die Luna, 9 ho. A. M. the 1st February, 1768.

A Motion was made by Captain Seaman, in the Words following, viz.

Mr. Speaker,

WHEREAS it appears from the State of the Treasurers Accounts, that many Inconveniencies have arisen, and Losses are likely to arise, by Reason of the Duties not being punctually paid into the Treasury, in the Manner the Law directs: I move that Abraham Lott, Esq; the present Treasurer, may be ordered to give public Notice in the New-York News-Papers, that all Persons whatsoever, liable to pay Duties, shall and will be sued without Distinction unless they punctually pay the same in the Manner required by Law.

Ordered, That Abraham Lott, Esq; Treasurer of this Colony, do give public Notice in the New-York News-Papers, that, for the future, all Persons liable to pay Duties, shall and will be sued without Distinction, unless they duly pay the same in the Manner required by Law.

Agreeable to the Order of the Honourable House, I have caused the foregoing Extract from their Votes, to be published; and that no Person whatsoever, whom it concerns, may pretend Ignorance of what the Law relating to the Payment of Duties requires, I have thought it expedient to publish such Clauses thereof as particularly relate thereto.

These Clauses, and the Order of the Honourable House, are too plain and intelligible to render any Explication of them necessary; I shall therefore only add, that I am resolved punctually to follow the Steps required by them; but hope to be prevented in this Part of my Duty, by the Duties being paid into the Treasury, pursuant to the Directions of the before recited Law.

ABRAHAM LOTT, Treasurer.
